

Kenyon College

II. Images with descriptions

1. For his research Soubhik Saha interviewed Muslims in various places in Kolkata. On the day we visited the synagogues Soubhik took this opportunity to interview the Muslim darwan (custodian) of Beth El synagogue. He learned that this position had been in this man's family for over fifty years.

2. Erin Saunders' work in Kolkata focused primarily on Nari Seva Sangha, a shelter and skills training center for single women. She used a translator and recorded her interviews with a mini-disc recorder. Here Erin is pictured with her translator interviewing a woman who is doing textile block printing.

3. We had meals together as often as we could and one of the highlights of the stay in Kolkata was having dinner at Soubhik's grandfather's home. They delighted in fixing Bengali specialties for us. Here we are (Erin Saunders, left; Soubhik Saha, center; and Miriam Dean-Otting, right with some members of the Poddar family):

